I am one of the luckiest animals on the farm! Why you ask, well because I am one of the few that has my mom and dad right here with me, granted they tend to be in other pastures! For the past year I have gotten to spend lots of time with mom and dad, but now it is time for me to have a herd all to myself to protect. It makes me sad and sometimes I cry knowing that mom and dad aren't right here with me. I try not to think about it but it is hard sometimes. Let me try and think of fun stuff to cheer me up!

I love warm days on the farm. When the sun is shining and the ground is hard I can get out and run my fastest! I am gonna get even faster (or that's what my dad tells me). I also like the sunsets here on the farm. The orange and yellow colors are my favorite.

My job on the farm is to protect one of the cow herds from the gnarly coyotes. My dad protects a herd of all female cows, I couldn't imagine. I have all the baby cows that are just under one year old. Me being one helps to be able to relate to them. My mom protects the horses and the miniature horses. She has a pretty easy job for they are good about showing the coyote who is boss. Dad is always busy for the ladies seem to have a mind of their own and they know that he will take care of any stray coyotes.

Thank you for talking to me .. You have made me much happier!
